Scranton named to Order of Canada LATEST NEWS

The Guardian

Well-known agriculturalist Charles Stewart Scranton of Hazelbrook has been named to the Order of Canada for his accomplishments in the industry, commerce and business category.

He was among 89 Canadians whose appointments were released Tuesday by the Governor-General. Scranton enters in the Members category.

He was cited for outstanding service over three decades with Agriculture Canada's poultry division and developed one of Canada's leading herds of Hereford cattle.

He was a longtime president and announcer of the Easter Beef Show and Sale and made numerous contributions to Rotary International.

He worked many years with Youth Outreach as part of his long involvement with First Baptist Church in Charlottetown.
